FISCHER FAMILY 14

This waterlogged dingy has been in the club yard for at least 2 years and recent attempts at finding the owner have failed. No storage fees have been paid. When the owner was sought via the club newsletter, no-one came forward. It is the club's intention to dispose of the vessel.

Only members are permitted to park their boats in the yacht club and only after the appropriate storage fee has been paid.

WHERE ARE THEY NOW??

Ever wondered to what happens to the cadets that pass through our ranks after they move away to university? Are they continuing to fly the flag for TLFYC on the water, or has uni work and partying proved all too much for them to be able to cram some sailing in as well? Well not for most, the Scottish university sailing scene is thriving and includes several of our members.

The majority of university sailing is team racing sailed in Fireflies, with teams from across Scotland coming together, over 3 weekends, to battle it out against one another in order to decide the teams which get to attend the BUSA team racing championships.

For the past two years, Ali Young has been sailing for Aberdeen whilst studying to become a primary teacher. Meanwhile, freshers Nell Hardie and Niall McLeod are in the Edinburgh and Strathclyde teams respectively.

Nell is studying Sports Science, whilst Niall is studying Naval Architecture and Marine Engineering.

The other popular form of sailing at uni is yachting.

Every year, teams from the Scottish universities come together in Largs for a weekends racing aboard the Sunsail boats, the winner getting to represent Scotland at the Student Yachting World Cup.
